POPE FRANCIS

Cardinals elect Jorge Mario Bergoglio of Argentina; Buenos Aires archbishop becomes first pontiff from the Americas

Pope Francis speaks from the central balcony of St. Peter's Basilica at the Vatican on Wednesday. The former Cardinal Jorge Bergoglio was elected on the fourth ballot, becoming the 266th pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church.

VATICAN CITY — Jorge Bergoglio of Argentina was elected pope Wednesday, becoming the first pontiff from the Americas and the first from outside Europe in more than a millennium. He chose the name Francis, associating himself with the humble 13th-century Italian preacher who lived a life of poverty.

Looking stunned, Francis shyly waved to the crowd of more than 100,000 people who packed a rain-soaked St. Peter's Square for the announcement, marveling that the cardinals needed to look to "the end of the earth" to find a bishop of Rome.

In choosing a 76-year-old pope, the cardinals clearly decided that they didn't need a vigorous, young pope who would reign for decades but rather a seasoned, popular and humble pastor who would draw followers to the faith and help rebuild a church stained by scandal.

The cardinal electors overcame deep divisions about the future of the church to select the 266th pontiff in a remarkably fast, five-ballot conclave.

Francis asked for prayers for himself, and for retired Pope Benedict XVI, whose stunning resignation paved the way for the conclave that brought the first Jesuit to the papacy. Francis also spoke by phone with Benedict after his election and plans to see him in the coming days, the Vatican said.

"Brothers and sisters, good evening," Francis said to wild cheers in his first public remarks as pontiff from the loggia of St. Peter's Basilica.

"You know that the work of the conclave is to give a bishop to Rome. It seems as if my brother cardinals went to find him from the end of the earth, but here we are. Thank you for the welcome," he said.

In one of his first acts as pope, Francis this morning planned to visit Benedict at the papal retreat in Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome.

American Cardinal Timothy Dolan said Wednesday night at the North American College, the U.S. seminary in Rome, that

County workers taking Spanish

Significant number of office's customers not native English speakers

GRAHAM — Employees at the Alamance County Register of Deeds office are taking Spanish language classes to better serve those who use English as a second language.

Register of Deeds Hugh Webster said Wednesday that an Alamance Community College instructor teaches the class one day each week. Employees' attendance is voluntary, Webster said.

"I was pleased all my employees wanted to do it," Webster said. "I am very happy they wanted to learn Spanish."

The three-hour class is held at the Register of Deeds office after work hours from 6 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and is scheduled to continue for another four weeks. Classes started four weeks ago.

Webster, who speaks Spanish, said since the classes are voluntary and are conducted after work hours, there's not a requirement that employees be compensated for their time spent in the classes. Webster said he is participating, along with all 11 employees of the office.

Webster said some of the employees had offered to pay to take the classes; however, the county is paying the $65 fee per person to allow the employees to take the classes over an eight-week period.

Basketball pools: Fun, lucrative — and illegal

While technically gambling, cops most likely will let you slide

Ready for those bracket pools that will be popping up everywhere next week as part of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Tournament?

Guess what? They're more than just fun and potentially profitable.

Several local law enforcement officers said, officially, engaging in such pools is misdemeanor gambling.

But rest easy, those of you wagering $5 on your favorite team to win it all. The odds of you being prosecuted for such a transgression rank right down there between slim and none.

Randy Jones, a spokesman for the Alamance County Sheriff's Office, said prosecution of such an offense would first require that a complainant come forward. Then officers would have to build a case.

At some point, the Alamance County District Attorney's Office would have to get involved.

At best, Jones said, the end result would be conviction of a misdemeanor offense.

"Is it worth the time and paperwork?" Jones asked. "I can't imagine it."

As one law enforcement officer who spoke on condition of anonymity put it, "Speeding 37 in a 35 zone
